

Divitel acquires Dimetis BOSS Broadcast Manager and opens an engineering location in Germany

The broadcast management platform and the full team behind it transfer to Divitel. The team stays in Dietzenbach, where Divitel is opening its German office.

Apeldoorn, the Netherlands, September 4, 2026

Divitel, a specialist in data-driven intelligence for video and broadband operations, has reached agreement to acquire the Dimetis BOSS Broadcast Manager platform, together with the engineering and support team behind it, from Dimetis in Dietzenbach, Germany. The transaction is expected to complete in September 2026, subject to customary conditions. Financial terms are not disclosed.

For the broadcasters and network operators running BOSS Broadcast Manager, the practical change is limited by design. Support continues through the same engineers, from the same location, under existing agreements. Customers were informed directly ahead of this announcement.

Dimetis BOSS Broadcast Manager is a broadcast management and control platform. Broadcasters and network operators use it to monitor and configure streaming, multiplex and IPTV environments and to automate the media workflows that run through them, which places it in the same video chain that Divitel already works in.

BOSS Broadcast Manager fits within the portfolio we already offer operators and media companies. What convinced us was not the platform alone but the people who built and maintain it, and they are all coming with it.

Hans Kornmann, CEO and founder of Divitel

BOSS Broadcast Manager belongs with a company that understands broadcast operations from the inside. Divitel does, and it is taking on the team as a whole rather than the software alone. For the customers using the platform every day, that is the outcome that matters.

Fabian Wörner, CEO of Dimetis

The Dietzenbach location becomes Divitel's German office. Keeping it in place preserves the team's expertise, its established customer relationships and its proximity to the German-speaking market.

The BOSS Broadcast Manager team will be present at IBC 2026 in Amsterdam, from 11 to 14 September, at stand 1.A48. Press and customers are welcome to meet the team there.
